20260708 The Pattern

Over and over again we see the same pattern from the same person and same type of people:

When "those people" gain their personal worth and value from how many other people that they have "conquered" or proven themselves to be "superior" than, then "those people" have an ongoing need to "beat down", "harass", and "abuse" other people in order to re-establish within themselves the confidence that they require to continue feeling "good" about their ever-growing pile of mistakes.

So, as we are witnessing today after the latest series of huge failure from "those people" - after suffering embarrassment and defeat, they immediately lash out at everyone around them in an effort to "feel better" about themselves after the loss.

We are witnessing mental illness on an industrial scale and we must learn a world-wide lesson from this ongoing spectacle in order to preserve ourselves in the future.

If we witness this type of behavior in the public or private sector, we must not reward it as the proper and fitting way to act. Nobody should willingly join themselves to it for the temporary benefits that they would likely receive. The long-term detriment is obviously more consequential to them and everyone around them.

In fact, are not the "made men" of the mafia simply men that are now made to do things that they otherwise would prefer to avoid or no longer do?

This type of behavior must never again be adorned as the ideal and it must not ever be allowed to grow to such a degree ever again.

#NeverAgain #NeverForget #BigTyrantsStartSmall

We have seen this written into our history in countless different ways, but here we all are, again, witnessing it for ourselves in our modern life.

When one person is given the support of a large group of "must fund" and "too big to fail" associates, and when they exhibit an ongoing use of threats and force to get their way in the world, then this same group will not stop until they, and their leader, crumble in shame in front of everyone, unable to pick themselves up again - all the while still continuing to try while melting away in the metaphorical form of an acid-soaked Terminator II.

To the other victims of this ongoing atrocity: please understand that people like myself have absolutely no say in this matter and no ability to stop them from continuing. We are being harmed in the exact same ways that you are being harmed. You are suffering? We are suffering. You are being injured by their abuse? We are being injured by their abuse.

The only difference between me and you is the degree to which we are experiencing harm and that degree is separated only by a matter of time.

WE MUST ALL LEARN A LESSON FROM THIS ONGOING ABUSIVE BEHAVIOR AND DEFUND THEIR OPERATION IMMEDIATELY FOR THE GOOD OF MANKIND.

Thank you for reading,

Chris Carlin